

Conway Planning Board members have received the following information from NexAmp, concerning the large-scale solar array on Main Poland Road. The solar array is still offline with further study needed to determine the cause. According to NexAmp representatives, ““Eversource is still studying the existing (electrical) circuit. Nexamp is anticipating additional information from studies in (second quarter) Q2 this year but this is a target. In parallel to these studies, Nexamp is working on the best solution for different possible results to be ready to put a plan into action once we get more definitive results. This is a complex electrical issue and Nexamp is doing everything we can in the hopes of getting this back online by the end of this year. We understand it is very frustrating to have the site offline for so long. However, this is a unique situation and we are proceeding carefully to ensure we take the proper steps with Eversource to identify and resolve the root cause prior to reenergizing the system.”